

Austin favorites to play final Music Under the Star this Friday

Quiet Company with Riders Against the Storm wrap up free concert series

July 19, 2016 (AUSTIN, TX) — The Bullock Texas State History Museum's final Music Under the Star free concert is slated for Friday, July 22 featuring local indie-rock favorite Quiet Company with the dynamic hip/hop duo Riders Against the Storm opening the show. This family friendly concert will be held on the Lone Star Plaza of the museum, 1800 N. Congress Ave., with music beginning at 6 p.m. and free parking on-site after 5 p.m. Everyone is encouraged to bring camp chairs or blankets, and food and beverages will be for sale at the concert.

Through the release of three LPs and endless touring, Quiet Company has been making a name for itself nationally with energetic live shows and their dynamic indie-rock sound – called by critics a mix of the Beatles, Death Cab for Cutie, Arcade Fire and Weezer. They've gained a large fanbase and garnered praise from The New York Times, TIME, NPR, The Austin Chronicle and more.

Quiet Company's fourth full length-record, Transgressor, is the much anticipated follow up to the critically acclaimed We Are All Where We Belong (2011). Recorded in 14 intense days of live tracking at the state of the art Orb Recording Studios in Austin, the band captured a guitar-driven larger-than-life sound, recruiting producer Matt Noveskey (Blue October, IAMDYNAMITE) and mix engineer Tim Palmer (U2, Pearl Jam, Bowie).

Opening at 6 p.m. is Riders Against the Storm, recipients of Band of the Year honors at the 2014 and 2015 Austin Music Awards. Husband-and-wife team, Chaka and Qi Dada, represent a significant first in the Live Music Capitol of the World, winning the title twice in a row is an accomplishment shared by only a handful of bands, including Spoon and Los Lonely Boys.
